Carmel, Monterey Bond Elections Seen Decisive In Issue of High School

Carmel citizens face the next two steps in their battle of self-determination to establish a high school this side of the hill and the next two steps are:

1—Vote for the Carmel high school bond issue of $165,000 at the Carmel Garage polling place on Tuesday, Sept. 27.

2 — Defeat the Monterey high school bonds on Thursday, Sept. 29.

Such anticipated action by an aroused electorate will sufficiently clear the air as to practically assure Carmel of its own high school as demanded by an overwhelming signature of the petition circulated by Charles K. Van Riper and associates in the Sunset school district during the past few weeks.

During this time an originally friendly attitude by the Monterey Union high school trustees has changed and leaders in Monterey took steps to defeat Carmel's aspirations to a high school patterned on lines which might give this community the advantages of a high school of a standard as high as that set for elementary schools by Sunset.

Arguments Hurdled

Every conceivable argument against the Sunset district's action has been hurled against the determined and enlightened voters of Carmel, but without success, as voters continued to sign the Sunset petition far beyond the necessary two-thirds of the district's electors, and those previously unregistered flocked to make good their signatures by placing their names on the great register.

Defeat of the proposed $525,000 Monterey Union bond issue for the "million dollar" plant designed for the $35,583 site which Carmel taxpayers will have to pay their share for this year in the general tax levy) appeared Carmel's major objective in what has turned out to be a bitter fight for the rights of the Sunset district, a fight made bitter by selfish Monterey interests.

Passage of the Sunset bond issue, however, would also be necessary to complete the first step toward a high school here.

Support Given

Expression of support of the Carmel high school proposal has come from such a far-distant area as Castroville, which is not satisfied with arrangements with the Monterey district, of which it is a part.

Proponents of the Sunset district project, facing a possibility of the Pebble Beach area forming an elementary district and withdrawing from the Sunset district so as to remain in the Monterey Union district, this week pointed out that the coastal and valley school districts with an assessed valuation of nearly two million dollars would likely be able to join the high school here, thus more than making up for the possible loss of Pebble Beach and Carmel Woods taxes.

While planning an aggressive campaign in support of their bond election, the Monterey committee, through William Mahar, Edgar James and others, this week declared informally that there would be no attempt to interfere with Carmel's plans. Meanwhile, Allen Griffin, writing editorially in a Monterey daily, has gone "overboard" in attacking Carmel's plans as "folly."

Carmelites Attacked

One such attack includes the following paragraph:

"This editor hesitates to accuse a committee of Best People and Leading Citizens of deliberate and carefully considered intent to deceive. On the other hand, he hesitates to accuse the intelligentsia of elephantine and abysmal ignorance."

Subsequently, a "branch high school," which would include most of the disadvantages and few of the (Continued on page 2)

"Old Carmel" Scene to Vanish

This is the outfall of the municipal septic tank, subject of many a jest among old Carmelites, but no subject for humor to swimmers, picnickers, or those who love the sea beaches unblemished by the presence of man. The present disgraceful situation, against which the Carmel Sanitary Board has waged a long, uphill fight, will soon vanish when the proposed sewage disposal plant is completed.

City's Drainage Project Awarded Grant By WPA

The city's drainage project was given official sanction of the Works Progress Administration this week, according to Councilman Clara Kellogg, who reported that the $19,000 Fourth street drainage job would be supplied materials and labor by the government with a balance of $4000 to be made up, half by the city and half by the Colvin-White interests.

Miss Kellogg also reported at the council meeting Wednesday afternoon that the Seventh street job was going ahead with state tax money to foot the bill. The curb and gutter will be replaced and the street resurfaced below Monte Verde with decomposed granite and oil mix.

Councilman Hazel Watrous, arriving late from San Jose, put in a suggestion that the pine tree in Dolores street where it dips into the gulch be removed as a traffic hazard. Councilman Everett Smith was favorable, believing the tree would not live long after the fill had been made there.

The contractors on the Bank of Carmel job, Dolores and Ocean avenue, may have to "move over." Councilman Frederick R. Bechdolt, Building Inspector Birney Adams and Attorney Hudson are talking over with the contractors the matter of how much public street and sidewalk may be used during the erection of the new bank building.

C. S. Olmsted was granted permission for the County Fair to hang a banner across Ocean avenue until Sept. 26. The council failed to make a bargain that the fair would not use loudspeaker advertising, frowned upon in this village. Hal Bragg's broadcast from Stella's window two years ago has not been forgotten.

The council meets again on Monday, Oct. 3, at 5 p. m., for an adjourned regular meeting to canvass the Library Bond vote. The regular monthly meeting will be the following Wednesday evening at 7:45.

Parking limit signs are coming down on secondary streets, amid a mixed reception by merchants. Those on Dolores and Ocean will stay, while the matter of time limit is yet being discussed.

Delay in a request for permission to operate an auto repair garage at Mission and Fourth by Charles A. Watson results as nearby property owners must be notified of the hearing. Signatures, however, have been obtained by Watson.

Councilman Bechdolt suggested neighboring communities give Carmel notice of their plans in relation to peninsula projects. He hinted of a certain high-handedness in some quarters without putting it this baldly.

"That's true Carmel spirit!" Mayor Herbert Heron declared enthusiastically when Joe Oliveira suggested the police put their phone in his office. He offered the space free and the city wasted no time in taking him up. He may answer the phone for the police, too, thus facilitating calls. Joe said he would also run around town in search of the officer on duty in case of an emergency, and this service would be free, too.

Officer Rogers, who left the police force last week, will get pay amounting to $70 for five days' work this month and a balance of nine days' vacation due him.

PWA Grant for Sanitary Plant Okeh Election Monday To Name Two Trustees

Washington has stamped with approval the Carmel Sanitary District's application for a PWA grant for the sewage disposal plant, it was learned by The Pine Cone this week from Clyde C. Kennedy, San Francisco engineer for the project.

While the grant is passed, the PWA money will not be here for about a month because of a heavy rush on PWA funds from California and cash is already going out to other states while that for California is temporarily delayed.

The application of the Carmel Sanitary Board was especially well received and praised for the basic worth of the project and for the manner in which the board raised its part of the money for the sewage disposal plant at the Carmel River "island site."

Voters of the Carmel Sanitary District go to the polls Monday to register their support of four candidates for the two positions left vacant on the Sanitary Board. Both incumbents are out for re-election and two opponents are also nominated in opposition.

Strong support of Allan Knight, one of the incumbents, well known throughout Carmel, and of G. H. Burnette, Carmel banker, is indicated.

Frank Townsend, whose term also expires, is up for re-election, while Commander Joseph A. Murphy, U. S. N., retired, is the fourth candidate.

The polling place will be the Carmel Garage; the time for voting between the hours of 6 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Present members of the board, which is aggressively working toward the sanitary plant at the island site on the Carmel River, are Hugh Comstock, chairman; Dr. J. B. McCarthy, and Randal Cockburn, secretary. Bernard Rowntree, sanitary assessor for the past four years, was unopposed and will hold the position for another two-year term.

Right of way across the Oliver ranch was obtained last week to provide for maintenance of the sewage disposal plant about a half-mile westward of the highway bridge over the Carmel river.

Monterey Board Errs In Statement

A statement issued to voters of the district by the Monterey Union high school trustees this week contained figures based on a $10,000,000 assessed valuation for the Sunset district as against the actual figure of less than $9,000,000, thereby not only throwing out of proportion their other figures, but discrediting their entire statement. And this at a time when the Carmel committee's figures were under attack in Monterey!

Wednesday noon was the time of arrival for John Cole Thompson, who joins the two little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Milton Thompson.

Myron Oliver Preparing Artists' Show for Fair

It won't be all cows, corn and chickens at the annual Monterey County Fair which opens next Thursday and continues through Sept. 25 at Monterey.

For Carmel residents, a fine arts show prepared by Myron A. Oliver with representative works from local artists and craftsmen, and the horse show each night and race meet on the afternoon of the concluding day, will head the list of attractions.

The fine arts show, to be housed in a lathe frame building at the grounds adjoining the Del Monte polo field, will include oils and water color paintings, wood carving, sculpture, exhibits of peninsula camera clubs and work completed under the Federal Arts Project. Oliver asks that those intending to exhibit make arrangements with him not later than next Tuesday.

Manager of the horse show is Dick Collins, of the Douglas Schools, Pebble Beach, who directed the fiesta horse show held in connection with the recent Carmel Mission play.

Early applications for entries indicate that "there is far more interest in the show this year than in the past," Collins said upon his return early this week from Sacramento, when he rode in a number of state fair events. The Presidio of Monterey team, of 20 men, under the leadership of Major C. H. Gerhardt, has now completed training for the county fair show.

Patty Ball and Betsy Bosworth, of Carmel, are planning to participate in the horse show and race meet, as are Harriet Foresman and Geraldine Flint, of Pebble Beach, and Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps and S. C. Fertig, of Carmel Valley.

Events for stock horses, jumpers, hunters, polo ponies and in equitation are included in the horse show, which will be held in a new arena constructed as part of a permanent building program, while eight races are scheduled for the meet on the afternoon of Sept. 25.

Climax of the meet will be a four- (Continued on page 4)

Stage Workshop Classes Popular

The Carmel Players Workshop classes opened this week under the supervision of the Adult Education. For anyone interested in the theater, and that takes in most of the peninsula, these classes offer a pretty complete training in stagecraft.

The serious student of drama should know all phases of the theater from the back stage business to the footlights. In this community such a student has the opportunity to study acting, radio broadcasting, playwriting, diction, set construction, lighting and costuming.

The class in stage set designing and lighting meets every Tuesday evening at 7:15 to 9:15 in the art room of the Sunset school. It is under the direction of Miss Anna Marie Baer and there is a gal who knows what she's talking about. The students will have the actual construction of sets on a miniature stage complete with lights and all the paraphernalia of a full-sized stage.

The costume class works under the direction of Naun Liljencrantz every Monday evening in the lunch room of Sunset auditorium.

In this class the students learn the actual cutting and making of costumes, both ancient and modern. The clothes are made in miniature on dolls and when the course is finished each person enrolled will have a complete history of costume in the wardrobes of the dolls.

Since the great majority of plays are modern, most of the emphasis of course will fall on modern clothes, the principles of line, proportion and color as applied to the present. There will be discussion of the 12 types of women (from the stylized angle) and what they can wear in the matter of fabrics, of mass, of weight, of design and color.

These two classes interlock, for no stage production is complete without the harmony of costume and set. Remember those dates, Monday and Tuesday nights in Sunset school. If you are interested in the theater here is a chance to study and learn with actual experience on the stage of future productions of the Carmel Players.

advantages of a high school of Carmel's own, was proposed by the Monterey trustees as a last-minute suggestion to plead for Carmel's support, as another lure to attempt to bring Carmel into another 20-year entanglement in Monterey's high school problems.

HEALTH REPORT

Two cases of syphilis and one of diphtheria were reported from Monterey this week according to the county health office. Five cases of syphilis, four of scarlet fever, one each of measles, tuberculosis, whooping cough animal rabies and diphtheria were recorded for the county.

NEW BOOKS LISTED AT LIBRARY OF WIDE INTEREST TO READERS

"The Living Torch," a collection of poems by the late George Russell, better known as AE, never before published in book form, will be welcomed by Carmel readers at the Library. These mature poems of AE's are arranged, as desired by Russell, by Monk Gibbon, who gives a full preface to the work. This poetry, Gibbon says, represents a "real reflection of AE's mind in the years of his maturity."

Carmel's music patrons will be glad to have a volume on Debussy by Oscar Thompson. "Debussy, Man and Artist" gives a clearer picture of the real man, in narrative "stripped of longstanding evasion," and deals with his two marriages, double divorce and attempted suicide as well as with the critical value of his work. New material is included, obtained from letters and surviving friends of the composer.

"Many Rivers," by Lewis B. Freeman, "a collector of rivers," will interest those who read travel books. "Rivers are your friends," Freeman says. "They take you where you want to go." Rivers, from the Klondike to the Congo, Colorado to the Kinabatangan of Borneo are touched upon intimately by Freeman. The book is well illustrated by photographs.

"Morally We Roll Along," also among the new books, is Gay MacLaren's story of the Chautauqua with mention of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, who got their start together in Chautauqua. This is an enlightening account of that typically American institution.

"Republican Hispanic America," by Charles Edward Chapman, professor in Hispanic American history at the University of California, will be a delight to those who desire real information on the history of the Americas.

Recent purchases at the library include:

Horse and Buggy Doctor, H. Hertzler; More Lives Than One, C. Bragdon; Coming Victory of Democracy, T. Mann; Theory and Technique of Playwriting, T. Lawson; Child Workers in America, K. GEORGIA KOBER DELIGHTS ON PIANO.....by Elayne Lavrans

In the studio of the Marble ranch, set in a beautiful garden and with the background of the Carmel Valley mountains, we heard Georgia Kober play a delightful piano program last Sunday afternoon.

Miss Kober is a very gracious being, and possessed of a charm which, as she greeted her audience on the lawn, and spoke wise words of the compositions that she was about to play, was distinctly feminine. Once at the piano, however, she displayed a forcefulness, an assurance and, when she wanted it, a crashing tone—all the qualities that men call masculine.

Her program, on the whole, was a light one, consisting, for the most part, of modern works and was entirely in keeping with the beautiful day and the landscape.

It was also so arranged as to give a sketchy history of the piano from the day of the harpsichord to the present.

Before opening her program with three sarabandes, Miss Kober explained that sarabandes were originally zarabandes, and were Spanish court dances. The first, a sarabande by Rameau, was played simply, without pedal, in imitation of the harpsichord. The second, also by Rameau, but arranged in a more complicated style by McDowell, and the third, Hommage de Rameau by Debussy, lacked the purity and simplicity of the first, as compositions, but were pleasing and beautifully played.

Miss Kober's second group consisted of four pieces of Debussy. "The Minstrels" became alive under her fingers and she laughed and played with them.

The "Girl With the Flaxen Hair" and the "Engulfed Cathedral" were especially beautifully played. The first half of the program ended with a short "Perpetual Motion" by the daring Poulenc and also the "Charmes" and "Suburbis", (rather insignificant numbers) of Mompou.

Following the intermission, Miss Kober played the "Prelude and Fugue in B Minor" of Caesar Franck. She played it with a spiritual quality, at the same time bringing out clearly the voice part movements. In a remarkable canon by Walter Keller and dedicated to Miss Kober, she showed, even more, her ability to weave independent voices, one against another, still keeping beautifully the effect of the composition as a whole.

The program ended with two compositions of Carmel's Henry Cowell, "Tides of Manaunan" and "Lilt of the Reels." In these, Miss Kober not only used her fingers effectively, but also her hands and forearms in the true Cowell method. Her interpretation of "Lilt of the Reels" so delighted the audience that they immediately demanded a repetition.

She is, by the way, a great admirer of Cowell, and she thinks him 50 years ahead of his time.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

Edward Weston is about to leave for a sojourn in Death Valley to take further photographs of the western series he is doing on the Guggenheim Fellowship, and will be gone for about a month on the present trip.

During the summer months, the Westons have been moving in to their new home, at Carmel Highlands, taking occasional journeys into Death Valley, and being seen only occasionally in Carmel, Weston's home several years ago.

Weston reports being able to make considerable strides forward in his present work, which deals with California scenery, especially mountain and sky effects.

The Ernest Leffingwell family has been in an uproar since the return of Nancy from Paris, the cause of the uproar being a small monkey which she picked up in South America. Apart from acquiring pets, Nancy has been seriously studying at the Sorbonne, where she specialized in French literature.

Before going abroad Nancy Leffingwell spent two years at Mills College, then decided to affiliate herself with the Delaware Group, which permits its members to study in foreign universities, while getting credits towards their degrees at their own schools. Members of the group go abroad in their junior year.

Nancy intends to spend several months in Carmel before continuing her college work and has not yet made up her mind as to whether she will return to Mills or finish in an eastern school.

In the meantime, what will be done with the monkey?

Author Clyde Brion Davis, his wife, son and mother, are now Carmel residents. Davis, who wrote the Book of the Month Club selection, "The Great American Novel", has been in the newspaper business in both the East and West for the past 17 years, and is now working on a historical book based on the Overland Trail as it wound through Nebraska. "The Anointed," by Davis was a Book of the Month Club selection for August a year ago.

The Davis family will live in the Mrs. Burton Williams home on Dolores near Santa Lucia.

Hollywood calls! First San Francisco, and now Hollywood, beckoned Edward G. Kuster, with a possibly wider theatrical field than Carmel, where he pioneered the Theater of the Golden Bough, whose relics rise starkly on Monte Verde street.

He'll go to work with Max Reinhardt as assistant in the Reinhardt Workshop of the Theater in Hollywood, which is patterned on the Reinhardt schools in Europe which have developed such front-rank stars as Emil Jannings, Elisabeth Bergner, Lulse Rainer, Marlene Dietrich, Ernst Lubitsch Rudolf Schildkraut, Werner Krauss, Richard Ordynski, and the late Alexander Moissi, among those well known in this country.

The Reinhardt Workshop has just completed its first successful summer session and Kuster's association is considered an especially happy one for the workshop. He will take leave from his Golden Bough Playhouse in San Francisco while with Reinhardt. Among those with whom he will work in Hollywood are Basil Rathbone, Paul Muni, Edward G. Robinson, Joseph Schildkraut, Ralph Bellamy, Constance Collier and a host of other well-known artists in the theater.

Week-end guests at the Sunshine Cottage of Mr. and Mrs. de Packh were Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Wilson, Brooklyn, N. Y., who are touring the United States and so far have found no place which they like better than Carmel.

mile point to point steeplechase over the jumps, the only race of its type to be held in California this year.

The fair itself will be opened next Thursday by a two-mile long parade of community, business, military and governmental bodies through the Presidio and along downtown Alvarado street, which has been transformed by Bruce Ariss' mural paintings of leaders in Monterey's past into "The Street of History and Romance." The parade will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon, with Matthew Beaton grand marshal. Previously, the Monterey Peninsula Breakfast Club, with Dr. W. B. Williams, of Carmel, presiding will hold an early morning meeting at the fairgrounds.

More than 2000 peninsula elementary and high school students are expected to participate in the opening parade, for it will be Children's Day with all schools, including Sunset, closed that afternoon. No gate admission will be charged for the youngsters.

Fair exhibits, the majority of which will be housed in new pine-log buildings, will be representative of the community, agricultural, industrial, and educational interests of all sections of Monterey county.

For the first time a building has been set apart for the use of county schools alone. In the agricultural building, granges and farm bureaus have already taken all available space, while more than half of the industrial booths have been reserved.

Carnival attractions at the fair will be furnished by Clark's greater shows.

Spaniards Brought Our Field Mice

America has been the fortunate recipient of many desirable things from Spain and the Spaniards in the form of cultural advantages, romantic music and surpassing art. But there is one contribution that America wishes that her picturesque and volatile European neighbor had kept to herself. That contribution is the member of the mouse family that scurries around and about the house, forcing the housewife to take to the most convenient chair and raising havoc with the contents of the cupboard.

House mice originated in Spain and were brought to America in commerce from that country, according to evidence presented by David Nichols of the American Museum of Natural History, to the annual meeting of the American Society of Mammalogists on the University of California campus.

In his paper Nichols described two new collections of house mice. The first was made by C. F. Underwood in Honduras, and consists of three small series taken from three separate points in the Central American republic. Although the humidity, floral background and soil were about the same in all three localities, each locality supports a perfectly distinct house mouse colony of its own. The second collection was made in Charleston, South Carolina. It was made up of a group of pale colored beach house mice on Folly Island. Some of this group evidently represents a new mutation in the albino series of house mice, Nichols said.

Nichols indicated that other new house mice types might be found by investigators throughout the country.

Parent-Teacher Meet Tuesday

The first meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association for this year will be held next Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 3 o'clock in Sunset school library.

The program will be informal, introducing new members of the board and staff to the gathering.

A report will be given by Frank Shea, telling what the board of trustees has accomplished during the past year. The meeting will be followed by tea.

Miss Geneva Peirce will be in the kindergarten room to take care of the small children and the play-ground supervisors will be on duty to look after the older ones.

CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS.....by Roy W. Cloud

UNITED STATES SOVEREIGNTY

The Bear Flag Republic lasted just 24 days, or until the American flag was raised at Monterey by command of Commodore John Drake Sloat on July 7, 1846, or 26 days, if we allow for the two days it required for the news to get to Sonoma, capital of the Republic.

War had been declared between the United States and Mexico prior to July 2, 1846, when Sloat dropped anchor in Monterey bay. There was a delay of five days before Sloat demanded the surrender of Monterey. Some authorities ascribed the delay to the occurrences at Sonoma and the institution of the Bear Flag Republic.

However, on the seventh of July, Sloat made formal demand on the commandante for the surrender of the capital, landed a force of marines and seamen, took possession of the port, and ran up the American flag to a salute of 21 guns from the three warships under his command in the harbor.

Sonoma received the news with acclaim two days later. The Bear Flag was promptly and officially supplanted on July 9, 1846, by the Stars and Stripes, and California came under the rule of the United States.

The Stars and Stripes were raised at Sonoma by Lieutenant Joseph Warren Revere, of the warship Portsmouth, then lying at San Francisco. Lieutenant Revere, a grandson of Paul Revere, and, on his mother's side of General Joseph Warren, the hero of Bunker Hill took the Bear Flag with him on his return east. Some years later he gave it to the Society of California Pioneers, where it remained until 1906. In that year this historic relic was lost in the fire that devastated a large portion of San Francisco, destroying the Society's headquarters.

The war with Mexico ended Feb. 2, 1848, and California, by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, became a part of the United States without a government other than might be given arbitrarily to it by the President. California in fact, never held "territorial" status. It came full grown into the Union.

GOLD AND STATEHOOD

The civil administration of California, under United States control, from 1846 until Statehood, in 1850, was directed by a succession of military governors.

Gold discovered by James W. Marshall at Captain John Sutter's Mill, at Coloma, near Sacramento, Jan. 24, 1848 (the date fixed in the diary of Henry Bigler a workman at the mill) soon focussed the world's eyes on California, and the greatest population stampede, probably, in history began.

General Bennet Riley became governor of California in April, 1848.

Administrative affairs of the department of California, as the province was now known, were in a chaotic condition. Governor Riley, an able, efficient executive crystallized the feeling of the people that conditions should be stabilized, by calling a Constitutional Convention. The convention duly met at Colton Hall, Monterey, Sept. 2, 1849.

Dr. Robert Semple, the state's first newspaper publisher and a leader in the Bear Flag "rebellion," was chairman.

The delegation apparently gave little thought to the formation of a territory, the established procedure preceding Statehood.

A constitution was adopted, with the provision that slavery—then a burning issue in Congress—should not exist in California.

A statewide election was held, Nov. 13, 1849, and a governor, other state officials a legislature and members of Congress were elected. The legislature in turn elected two United States senators—although California was not yet a state—Senators John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin.

The newly-elected congressmen proceeded at once to Washington, where, after a prolonged battle over slavery—the states of the Union at that time being divided in Congress

15 to 15 on the slavery issue—Statehood was finally granted California.

Sept. 9, 1850, the 31st in the sisterhood of states.

Birth Of A Plant For Exposition

"A Plant Is Born," is the unofficial title suggested for the botanical exhibit to be made by the University of California at the Golden Gate International Exposition. Realizing that science has now made the secrets of plant propagation and nutrition as interesting in some essentials as human propagation and nutrition, the University is to give much of its total display space to this exhibit.

The plan for the exhibit has been drawn down to the last detail, and its actual construction in the Palace of Science on Treasure Island is due to begin at any time. Unit No. 1 of this exhibit group will deal with the pollination of a flower and the resultant development of fruit and seed. The central feature will consist of a mechanized panel showing three gladiolus flowers, each flower in this ten-foot panel to be approximately three feet high.

The flower in the center will be sectioned to show just exactly what happens after the process of pollination begins.

The exposition visitor will attend to his own plant culture in this exhibit. By pressing the starting button of the unit he will start a pollen grain from an anther of a flower above the sectioned one moving down the panel, to come to rest finally on the stigma of the pistil of this greatly enlarged half blossom. Then, as in life, this pollen grain will send out a pollen tube which burrows down through the style of the pistil to penetrate the ovary and reach an ovule awaiting fertilization.

An illuminated transparency representing an enlargement of the ovary with its ovule will then light up at the left of the painting, and will rotate through four stages showing the penetration of the pollen nuclei, the union of pollen and ovule nuclei and subsequent seed development. When this cycle has been completed the lights will be extinguished and the mechanism will return to its original condition.

Girl Scouts Plan Nursery for Fair

The Girl Scouts of Monterey will conduct a day nursery during the four days of the County Fair to be situated on the grounds for the convenience of parents wishing to see the exhibits in freedom. All arrangements are to be handled by Mrs. H. Zaches, assisted by Mrs. H. J. Morse, Mrs. Fern Adamson and Mrs. George Smith. The nursery is to be in charge of three adults, helped in the amusement of the children by three Scouts so there may be no fear that the children will not be in responsible hands.

The Girl Scouts of Del Monte will be in charge on Thursday from 3 to 8 p. m., under the supervision of Mrs. W. H. Eastabrook; and on Friday the Girl Scouts of Carmel will be hostesses under Mrs. Webster Street from 11 a. m. until 8 p. m.; Miss Edith Anthony takes charge on Saturday assisted by the Scouts of Monterey, and on Sunday Pacific Grove Scouts will work with Mrs. J. H. Bastedo during the same hours.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION

Stormy Sea Is Theme at Art Gallery This Month

Janie Otto was typing, Clay Otto was hammering, and Mrs. Jack Schroeder and her daughter, Carol Yerkes, were whirring away at the sewing machine when I went into the Art Gallery.

"Imagine," said Janie, "two hundred yards of material to be cut and sewed into wall drapes... and these two fine people are giving all the time necessary to do it."

"Pretty generous," I agreed, "but the people connected with the gallery all seem to be ready to help anyone even though it does take up their valuable time. Please come and tell me about the pictures in the show this month."

Janie took me into the main room, sat me on a bench, and then disappeared into her office to return in a minute with a typed list of the pictures in the show and the names of the artists exhibiting.

"This will save you writing these all out yourself," she said.

Don't you agree with me that they are a fine generous lot at the gallery?

The prevailing element in the exhibit this month is the sea in storm. At each end of the gallery hang two marines each expressing the ocean brooding under heavy clouds, an ocean sullen and ominous before the threat of a renewed frenzy of wind and rain.

These pictures are "Monhegan Island" by John O'Shea and "Gathering Storm" by William Ritschel. The O'Shea shows the ocean buffeting the Maine island and seems to me the most satisfying picture in the show due to the greatness of its simplicity.

Burton Boundey's "Church at Tres Pinos" has all the clean, peaceful quality of a Sunday morning, while Armin Hansen's "Spirit of the Rodeo" with the dancing figures of horses and riders blurred by whirling dust in a vastness of dry heat, breathes the atmosphere of a Saturday afternoon in summer.

One of the most interesting things to be shown this month is the wall decor painted by Tullita Westfal and loaned by the Federal Art Project. The central figures in the composition are a white rooster and hen divided by a narrow stream on the banks of which grow little flowers. This foreground is framed by a picket fence and eucalyptus branches which are so placed as to leave in the background a glimpse of green, spring fields merging into soft purple hills. Miss Westfal is to be congratulated on her elimination of unnecessary detail and telling use of color.

The fine light and color of the south of France are shown in two of Myron Oliver's pictures while a third shows Gloucester, Mass., in a sombre mood.

"Coast Sentinels," by William Ritschel, has an interesting use of vivid blue in the water which is only to be caught under certain conditions. Surging waves against sun-drenched rocks, ably handled, is the subject of Paul Dougherty's "Flooded Ledges."

"Hawaii," by John O'Shea, is mainly interesting as a composition of vertical and horizontal lines expressed by palms and the ocean.

Ferdinand Burgdorff and Charlotte Morgan are exhibiting two typical Carmel scenes which should arouse a feeling of nostalgia in an exile from our village. "Delphiniums" by Edda M. Heath is a fine example of a painting using almost exclusively a blue palette, with excellent composition. Major Coote has caught the aloof stillness of Lake Tahoe and its unbelievable blues. Stylized treatment of flowers is seen in Louise Jenkins' two pictures. She has a subtle handling of color which gives her work a rich, smooth quality combined with a fine use of light and shade which contributes strength.

The complete list of members exhibiting in the current show is:

Monhegan Island, John O'Shea; Javanese, William Ritschel; Church at Tres Pinos, Burton S. Boundey; Spirit of the Rodeo, Armin Hansen; Martique Boatmen, Myron Oliver; Still Life, Gene Francis; Coast Sentinels, William Ritschel; Ste. Tropez Quai, Myron Oliver; Washington Square, Lester Boronda; Flooded Ledges, Paul Dougherty; Martique Houses, Myron Oliver; Still Life, Paul Dougherty; North of Big Sur, Burton S. Boundey; Gathering Storm, William Ritschel; Hawaii, John O'Shea; Forbidden Fruit, Robert Balfour; Late Afternoon, M. De Neale Morgan; Evening at Gloucester, Myron Oliver; Deep Woods, Emma Kraft; Junipero Street in Carmel, Charlotte Morgan; Cup' O Gold, Louise Jenkins; Delphiniums, Edda M. HAIR AND HIGH

Get high, and like it. The hair simply must be "up" for long leg-o-mutton sleeves, muffs, and whatever else that happens to resemble any of the styles from 1900.

Hollywood concedes with saying "yes" for evening, but "no" for daytime; however the hair is styled so that with a nonchalant "swoop up" off the neck, and a circle comb, the high is accomplished with saucy curls doing their bit of "puff".

Joan Crawford says that, "Life in Hollywood is too out-doors for romantic hair styles for daytime, but for evening... ah yes."

Claudette Colbert is going back to the long bob style as soon as she finishes working on the picture "Zaza." She claims that "high hair styles are uncomfortable, and new little hats silly and unflattering."

Carole Lombard diplomatically says, "The long bushy bob is not smart now, and coiffures should be neat and smooth."

What then? I say, get out your hair brush (one with long soft bristles) and start experimenting. Write to me for suggestions if in doubt, and describe your hair length, etc. Up or down, 'tis so simple... and fun, too.

Art Association Needs Funds for New Gallery

An appeal for funds to complete the excellent new gallery of the Carmel Art Association on north Dolores street was issued this week by Dr. Margaret Levick for the association directors.

"Carmel should be justly proud of its new art gallery," Dr. Levick declared in putting forth her appeal. "The work done in building the new gallery has been slowly but surely progressing until at last we have a beautifully proportioned, well lighted, fireproof building consisting of a large gallery for oils and a somewhat smaller one for water colors, the latter made possible by the generous gift of Mrs. Beardsley as a memorial to her late husband, George F. Beardsley."

There are also a small room for one-man shows or to be used as a place to show pictures which are for sale, a large storage room, and lavatories in the rear of the building. All this, according to Dr. Levick, has cost much more than was expected at the outset in spite of many donations of material and in work and money, chiefly because the building is so much larger than was originally planned.

The Art Association is now making this appeal to the community to assist generously in the completion of this much-needed building and "any amount from a dollar up" will be most gratefully received, according to Dr. Levick.

"Let us make this a civic project," she urged, "for Carmel is known all over the world as an art center and in giving our artists, of whom we should be justly proud, a beautiful setting in which to show their work."

Donations should be made to the Carmel Art Association Building Fund and sent to Mrs. Byington Ford, treasurer of the association.

Abbie Lou and Laidlaw Williams are moving back to their house at San Carlos and Thirteenth.

A VOYAGE IN THE YELLOW CHINA SEA.....by Phil Nesbitt

(Note: This is the second of a series of Chinese sketches by Phil Nesbitt written before the march of history changed so much of Old China).

"By the dawn's early light" we are sailing from Shanghai. I can see, as the whistle running up the stumpy little red painted funnel gives its first blast, the Whang Poo river shining darkly. Upon its black-yellow bosom are supported the dim forms of a score of battleships and gunboats. Their serried rows of night-lights reflect in golden gleaming shafts across the calm surface.

Within an hour the sun will rise. The skyscrapers along the Bund are in reality a massive wall but in this dim, early morning light appear to be but vague and unsubstantial, like a solid fog bank or a forest front, this sombre morn. The casual and scarcely visible masses of night clouds overhead gather themselves silently, with almighty slowness. But there is no silence for all that. No! All this night the coolies have been wailing and howling at their work of loading cargo. There are no cargo-loading trucks and tractors in China. Man is the engine throughout. Give a Chinese coolie a burden and you give him pretext for the most remarkable series, constant and overwhelming, of yellings conceivable. When some uncounted hundreds assume the joy of unrepressed shouting, the senses stagger.

A moment ago there were thumpings in the heart of the vessel. The whistle is blasting itself to shreds of terrific sound. The anchor-chains are rattling like a foundry. We are soon to get underway.

Now we are swinging down the old Whang Poo with a fair amount of nautical elegance. Trim looking, blue jacketed and brown belted "anti pirate police" are striding the bridge deck with rifles in hand. At their sides are revolvers in holsters. Already they have searched the Chinese passengers aboard.

Pirates, it appears, smuggle arms and ammunition in with them as they arrive at the ship. Later when the ship is passing through the "pirate isles", near the Port of Hong Kong, they pounce upon the captain and his crew. Chinese are cruel people. When they turn bandit or pirate they let themselves go with the same usual unrepression which distinguishes the whole people. If their raid is successful and they overpower the crew, they loot the ship with simple efficiency. Every single item of value is seized and stowed away in their junks, which, in the meanwhile, have sailed out from hiding and given help to the pirates already aboard as passengers; jewelry, food-stuffs, cargo, silks gold bullion and such things as typewriters and fountain pens. (I shall protect mine). The Chinese covet all calligraphical instruments. It is when the first ritual is done with that they gaze upon the opulent no-longer passengers of the hapless coastwise steamer fallen prey to them. With eyes ashine with selective discrimination they choose those of the passengers whom they hold for future ransom. The fattest, the most distinguished in appearance, are dropped over into the foul-smelling holds of the waiting junks to be taken into the back spaces of those parched hilly little islands off Hong Kong. There they are preserved in great discomfort until the ransom money is or isn't sent. What happens to the once opulent ones in the latter instance is so brief as to not bear record. But on this voyage of mine, I daresay there will be no pirates. The trim anti-pirate police have a look about them. And after all, here is a copy of an item on a notice amidship: "December 1, 1934; a coolie was found in possession of a revolver and ammunition. Beheaded December 2nd, 1934". Presto!

The sea is a fine ochre yellow. We are passing group after group of steep-walled islands of a desolate and dry appearance. Fishermen and farmers are able to live upon them. Looking far away at the horizon I see brown dots indicating deep-sea junks with sails full set. Also I have seen several gleaming dolphins sporting and plunging at the bow of the vessel. What they are doing in water as yellow as plain bean soup I cannot tell when, by cruising in their swift fashion for two score miles, they may play the blue and fathomless depths of old outer Pacific! I cannot concern myself with the quaint habits of dolphins at this time, though I do feel the attraction of the problem.

We sit on the topside deck during the day in stiff canvassed, nicely made mahogany deck chairs. It's a good little ship, all agleaming with yellow brasswork and fresh paint, the "Tai Yuan" of London. Its owners claim vast godowns in a score of Chinese ports. They are British to the core, with the coat-of-arms inscribed on the dinner plates and silverware, these ship owners of far away London.

There is rapidly developing between the four adult passengers and the officers of the Tai Yuan, a curious and quiet conflict. It is the ancient, waged battle between landmen and seamen. The landmen would have their minds diverted by idle nautical chatter, would be entertained with James Conrad atmospheres while making this passage of the China Sea. I know that the captain and his officers find a certain boredom—nay, weariness in facing a new quartet of passengers every week and a half. At the lunch and supper table the officers sit with heavy, stoic silence pressing down upon them. I can see their way, and ours also. Well, that's the quiet battle, the silent nature of the contention. Both sides feel the problem seriously for, oddly enough, each looks sympathetically at the other.

The captain is at heart a deeply humorous man. A Scotsman of an appearance not unlike movie player Wallace Beery. Contrastly acutely to him, is the first mate, also a Scotsman. He contrasts because of his distinctly dour and stolid attitude toward life; frequently, however, he will make a cryptic remark, calculated to shock our restraint, yet effectively steeping us all in boarding house gloom. One of the passengers a bright young professor from London University, queries the table with emphatically pointed conclusions already answered. However the sea is like a molten yellow mirror and the sky limpid turquoise. Tomorrow we steam into the island-bound fastnesses of the harbor of Amoy, on the China South Coast.

This evening the mood of the sea was one of great beauty. Countless millions of half-familiar stars glittered in the dark sky. The three other passengers and I clambered forward to the ship's bow and there gazed at the turning, phosphorescent sheen of bow-wash. This spectacle is a curious thing. The wave, bisected by the sharp steel of the hull has the appearance of opalescent milk. Enchanted milk, made for worlds in outer space. One could see the boiling bubbling upper surface of the water against the deeper green glow which emanated from the disturbed phosphorous insects and diatoms. Looking astern into the darkness, we could see the star-lighted outline of the little ship, swaying with ponderous, slow roll from side to side. A quality of profound serenity entered our voices, for the tranquility of the night was very marked. The sighing voices of the bow and side wash gave a low musical note to the fainter creakings of rigging. The mast-head light glowed steadily. A fine moment to recall later, perhaps, when one is being hustled about by the crowds on Forty-second street and Broadway, in New York. Such a night as this one was, I am told, is typical of the waters of the South China Sea and those of the Indian Ocean lower down, around the globular turn of Mother Earth.

Penguin Figures In Shirley Film

Pete Penguin has no place in the featured billing of Shirley Temple's new starring film, "Little Miss Broadway," playing at the Carmel theater, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, but in many respects he is the equal of George Murphy, Jimmy Durante, Phyllis Brooks and Edna Mae Oliver, who head the cast.

Peter is the trained penguin whose sequences in the musical hit are some of the high spots of hilarity. His wardrobe contains ten changes of costume, which is more than many screen idols get in a single picture.

Further to emphasize his equality on the 20th Century-Fox lot, Peter has a stand-in. This is a fairly accurate replica of himself made of cotton wool and garnished with shoe-button eyes.

"Dopey", the lovable dwarf of "Snow White", patterned after Eddie Collins, veteran burlesque comedian and facial contortionist, also figures, as Collins will be seen in the "Little Miss Broadway" cast with a prominent role.

CARMEL WOODS TRACT ENJOYS INCREASED BUILDING ACTIVITY

A sharp uptrend in building activity this year in the Carmel Woods tract is indicated in figures released today by the Del Monte Properties company.

Homes are now being erected at a greater rate than ever before in the history of the tract, representing thousands of dollars for Carmel builders and building supply concerns.

Within the last year 26 homes have been erected on the tract, in comparison with the yearly average of five homes, which has been in effect since the tract was first mapped out in 1923.

Plans for three more homes have just been approved and two additional lots which have just been sold are to be built on within 60 days.

Commenting on this building boom in Carmel Woods, Del Monte officials pointed out that lots in this subdivision are much lower than any other comparable place, being five times less expensive than the average lot in Carmel and about as expensive as lots of equal size in Hatton Fields.

Artists, architects, professional leaders and society folk from all parts of the country now make their homes amid the oak and pine trees of the tract.

The property is sold subject to

Among the most attractive are those of Mrs. Lawrence Fox and her son, Mrs. Etha Berkey, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Nesbitt, Dr. Margaret Levick, Col. W. T. Davidson, Mrs. W. H. Berdine Phillips Buys Alpine Inn

Berdine Phillips, of San Francisco, has bought the attractive Alpine Inn and Tea Garden on Dolores street, the most photographed place in Carmel. The setting appealed to Miss Phillips, and was a deciding factor in bringing her to Carmel.

The new proprietor announces that all salads will be prepared individually in accordance with her custom of home-cooking and an excellent cuisine maintained at all times.

Miss Phillips is a home economics graduate of the University of Minnesota, and taught home economics in Spokane, Wash., public schools for several years.

She has also been on the staff of General Foods Corporation, covering for them all western states as a demonstrator in schools and hospitals.

In Chicago she managed a tea shop for two years and during the last five years conducted cooking schools in California for the Independent Merchants Association.

Carmel people will be glad to welcome so well prepared a proprietor of Alpine Inn as Berdine Phillips.

Big Creek Bridge Open Down Coast

One more bridge in the coast road between here and San Simeon was put in use this week at Big Creek. This bridge, of concrete and built as an independent unit, actually detached from the adjoining canyon walls, is 500 feet long and 90 feet above the bed of Big Creek.

The approximate cost of the bridge was $146,000. C. O. Sparks and Munda Engineering company built it for the state.

There are two central spans.

Christian Science

"Matter" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, Sept. 18, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand for ever" (Isa. 40:8). Other Bible citations will include: "I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom; and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly even of foolishness and madness . . . Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions" (Eccl. 7: 25, 29).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Human belief has sought out many inventions, but not one of them can solve the problem of being without the divine Principle of divine Science. Deductions from material hypotheses are not scientific. They differ from real Science because they are not based on the divine law" (p. 273).

LEGION HALL JAMMED TO HEAR TELFER READ "SUSAN AND GOD"

So popular is Ronald Telfer in his appearances in Carmel that when he returned here to read "Susan and God" last Saturday evening, the Legion Hall was packed to capacity. Enthusiastic listeners are now looking forward to his next appearance here when he will read "Our Town," Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer prize play on Wednesday, Oct. 12.

This San Francisco dramatist, who is himself head of a school of acting, and is a professional actor, playwright, theatrical director and whatnot in connection with the stage, thrilled his audience with his comparatively simple rendering of "Susan and God."

Making the most of subtle lines and giving to satisfaction the intimate presentation, Telfer scored again and again with the laughs in the play by Rachel Crothers.

Without making so wide a range in voice as many readers do, but avoiding the high falsetto and extreme bass, he gives a much more thoughtful reading, so as to bring out the humor that lies in the written play.

So realistic is Telfer, that the listener forgets he is hearing just a reading, and succumbs to the illusion that here is the real thing and that Telfer is indeed a real character out of the play.

The American Legion Auxiliary, which sponsored Telfer's reading, this week extended thanks to those of the community who so spontaneously supported the reading, the proceeds of which will go to the Auxiliary's welfare fund.

Craftsmen Elect Officers, Hear of Shop Success

The Carmel Guild of Craftsmen, which held a first annual meeting at the gallery of the Carmel Art Association on Monday evening, marked a successful three months of operation, during which their shop in the Court of the Golden Bough did as well or better than was expected by even optimistic members of the Guild.

Officers of the Guild were unanimously re-elected, while Horace Lyon was elected to the newly-created position of assistant director. George Seideneck is the director, Francis Whitaker the treasurer and Miss Jean Bouse is the secretary.

Reports given during the meeting showed a membership of 60, while financial reports and others showed the Guild to be in a strong and prosperous condition.

Appreciation of volunteer work given the Guild by its members was expressed, and possible participation in the exposition at San Francisco next year was discussed, as was the matter of a "jury" to select exhibits for the shop.

The meeting has a social side and members closed the evening with a feast on Kansas hickory smoked ham prepared by Mrs. Chloe Wilson.

Next job for the craftsmen is to prepare work for the pre-Christmas shopping season, as many inquiries have already been received at the shop.

The shop itself is now pleasantly decorated with some excellent German photographs of natural life subjects showing design in nature.

From a Window In Vagabond's House

By  DON BLANDING

When I am in California there's a trip that I take whenever the opportunity comes my way. I call it my spiritual face-lift for more reasons than one. Borrowing a phrase of Edna St. Vincent Millay's, when I have finished that trip I feel "just a little taller." It is the journey from San Francisco to Crescent City and return along the Redwood Highway. I believe that it is the most wonderful single unit of beauty in America because one repeated pattern is imprinted on the mind and heart until all else is forgotten . . . the impression of godlike majesty.

The Empire State Building and the Chrysler Building move me to awed admiration of man's amazing ingenuity, his will-to-power. They also somewhat terrify me as symbols of the almost unlimited potentiality for good and evil that lies in man's half-mad and half-inspired hands. But the giant redwoods are living things in the full glory of their strength and growth. They are not old within themselves and yet some of them were old, as we estimate age, when Christ was crucified. The calendars of many hundreds of years are recorded in their tree-rings. They are tangible links between the sky and the earth. Their tops are often misted with clouds; their roots are firm in the good soil. To walk among them is to walk, silently and humbly, in a vast cathedral. Their silence is more inspiring than mighty hymns chanted by a multitude.

There was a night of the full moon when I slept among them, not in a camp but in a magic circle of the giants well away from the road. An uneasy ghostlike mist moved among the trunks, making them like painted shadows on gray curtains that hung from the arch of the sky. Sometimes the moon peered down, wise in the wisdom of the ages; sometimes it veiled its weary face with clouds. The world of man with its struggles, its agonies, its angers and frustrations was blurred into dreamy nothingness by the surrounding silence and grayness.

If the gods do walk among us mortals they walked that night. I could feel their presence. It was not frightening. There was peace in their nearness. Spoken words would have profaned that holy silence and yet I felt a great need to pray, which is something that I have never been able to do glibly. The great trees seemed to be waiting, listening. I know that I did not speak and yet, after an interval . . . how long I could never know . . . I felt that I had talked with Someone who listened, so kindly, so understandingly, to my puny human story of cherished dreams, of frantic strivings, of pitiful failures and small triumphs. For a breathless instant I seemed to feel and hear and know the colossal life of the universe through the medium of those silent trees. I could feel the tiny fibres of root-ends searching in the dark earth for sustenance; I could feel the movement of sap through the trunks to the leaves high above me; I could feel the powerful swelling force of expansion as, in that minute, the trees reached one millionth of a millionth of an inch nearer the sky.

I knew that if I were privileged to die there deep in that forest it would not be long before the wise earth-chemistry would transform repulsive putrescent flesh into something which would ultimately attain to beauty thru being used in the growth of those godlike trees. And I knew then, too, that only the pain of death, never death itself, would ever terrify me; that somehow I would always be part of this world I love; that there would be an awareness of life whether it was in the glad uncurling of a fern frond of which I would be a part or as a bit of earth lying fallow awaiting the fall of a seed which would find sustenance through it.

I have tried to put something of the beauty of that moment into this verse. I offer it humbly.

MESSENGER

Redwood Highway

A God seemed too remote for me to find

With prayer and incense vaguely lost in space.

I longed to touch the Feet to see the Face

Where glory, strength and kindness combined.

I knew the eyes of images were blind. My tears could never move the frozen grace

Of marble saints nor could my grief displace

The carved smile a sculptor's hand designed.

At last I found a messenger to trust, An earthly demigod as old in life

As all remembered time, wound-scarred by strife,

To span the space between the sky and clod.

Through this, a mighty redwood's upward thrust

I sent my heart where it might speak with God.

Filmarte Brings Varied Program

This week's film fare at the Filmarte Theater is varied, with a Viennese musical film, a Shakespearean spectacle, an outdoor action thriller, and a masterpiece of photographic and dramatic art, which holds the distinction of being among the year's ten best, adjudged by the National Board of Review.

The musical, which stars the charming voice and personality of Marta Eggerth, is adapted from the Franz Lehar operetta, "Clo Clo," and comes to us under the title "The Waltz Princess." Seen here earlier in the summer, Filmarte patrons have demanded it back. It is truly one of the most delightful European films ever to play the Filmarte, and its music, photography, and comedy are unsurpassed. It plays Friday and Saturday.

The Shakespearean spectacle, Max Reinhardt's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the first in a cycle of Hollywood-made Shakespearean plays, comes Sunday and Monday. An imposing list of Hollywood stars are seen in the familiar roles, including James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, Dick Powell, Mickey Rooney, Olivia De Havilland, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, and many others. The musical background is by Mendelssohn and the dances were arranged by Najinska. More important talent has gathered for this film than any other single film since "Grand Hotel," and no expense was spared by Warner Bros., the producers, in transporting the famous Shakespeare play to the screen.

Then comes the greatest so-called "western" film ever made, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." This film needs no introduction, as it was Paramount's greatest money-making film of recent years. Starring Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, and C. Aubrey Smith, the film was over four years in production, and was largely photographed in the interior of India, where the Bengal Lancers are stationed. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" plays Tuesday and Wednesday.

Of great interest and importance is the announcement of the exclusive Peninsula showing of the much talked of film "The Spanish Earth," which opens its four-day engagement starting Thursday. Produced and directed by such stellar literary and dramatic names as Ernest Hemingway, John Dos Passos, Lillian Hellman, and film-maker Joris Ivens, "The Spanish Earth" has become the most important film of international significance in a great many years. A moving and dramatic story of a people trying to live when life is difficult, it is a motion picture of compelling artistry and rare entertainment values. The National Board of Review this year bestowed upon it the distinction "One of the Ten Best of the Year."

The exclusive Monterey Peninsula engagement of "The Spanish Earth" starts Thursday, Sept. 22.

In Carmel for their annual visit are Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Holyoake and their son and daughter, DeForest and Mary Elizabeth, from Piedmont. They are staying at the Lillian Lancers.

Better Light
HELPS KEEP EYES RIGHT!

PEOPLE say modern lighting that is "easy on the eyes" makes the eyes feel better . . . And they are right . . . Good lighting brings out the beauty of the home furnishings . . . It aids personal beauty, too.

Light that is glaring brightness or that is dim and gloomy makes hard work of seeing. It causes squints and frowns and scowls and brings on many premature wrinkles and face-lines.

Good, modern lighting merely wrinkles the right kind of light, and the right amount of light where you read or sew or use your eyes. And you can have it easily, quickly, inexpensively. A Home Lighting Recommendation chart made out for your home will fit lighting to serve the exact seeing-needs in your home. This is a free service and there is no obligation. Hundreds are taking advantage of this service. Why not you?

AMERICAN PLAN

LEYS PUTS JAPAN ON THE SCREEN.....by Francis L. Lloyd

From the dots of islands that are Micronesia in the far western equatorial Pacific to the icy realm of Kamchatka in the north, J. Farquarson Leys, now in Carmel for a few weeks, has put the Japanese Empire on motion picture film.

This motion picture, a comprehensive study of Japan, her people and possessions, will be given its American debut at the Filmarte theater on the evening of Monday, Sept. 26.

Originally taken for the 1940 International Exposition at Tokyo, which was called off along with the Olympic Games there because of the "undeclared" war, the film gives an intimate and thorough "look see" into the life of the Japanese and their far-flung territories where the Far West becomes the East.

This young man, Leys, who claims Scottish-American descent and holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Harvard, has his home in Hong Kong and is a travel publicist, but worked his way up to this post via the crew's nest. It was while standing watch as seaman in the crew's nest of a steamer entering the land Sea that young Leys first saw Nippon. As a seaman he sailed most of the oceans, but he's also found time to write widely as a newspaperman and as a publicist.

Yet Leys' film on "Japan the Empire" is no publicity travelogue. It goes deeper than that, in that it gives a more intimate view of the subject, gets in and out of more places and turns up more items of interest than the usual travel film could.

At a time when newsreel cameras were trained on war scenes, Leys went out to find material in the peaceful arts of the Japanese. Not interested in propaganda, Leys went ahead with shooting a wide range of subjects, not failing to take in those parts of the Empire of the Rising Sun so easily forgotten or ignored, the primitive islands where the gentler brown people live an idyllic life, or the fog-draped lands of the more northern Pacific, the Kuriles, where the fur seals breed and are slaughtered for their hides, or Kamchatka, right next door to Uncle Sam's Aleutian Islands, which sweep down halfway from America to the Asiatic mainland.

Leys, in spite of his adventuring abroad, is not a Jack London type of adventurer. Rather, he is a studious-looking young man of about 36, who has perhaps learned some Asiatic graces of patience and peace, and yet whose mind is running along on thoughts as grim as: What will happen when Japan has absorbed China and turned her attention toward the West? What then, Little America?

While Japan was acquiring territory from China, Leys was studying what Japan had already acquired in culture from her unwieldy neighbor on the mainland. While Japanese men were being put into uniforms and marched away, Leys moved into Japan to catch the men who stayed behind and the life they continued to live despite the distant alarms of war.

One of these striking pieces from life is the ceremonial slaughter of a young bear which, in accordance with custom, had been suckled for two years by one of the comely young women of the village. This is in Hokkaido where the so-called "hairy" Ainu live, the "white men" of Japan, said to be a remnant of a white race "lost" in the Orient. While the animal is killed, the young woman wails as for her own child. When the bear is dead, the villagers dip their hands in the blood. Arrows and stones are the lethal weapons. Although the camera caught all the action, Leys was his own censor and avoided brutal scenes which might shock his audiences.

At other times, however, Leys was subject to the censorship of the Japanese military authorities, and, by going first to the highest authority, was given a fairly free hand in photographing whatever he wished, with the exception of certain possibly valuable landmarks in the mandated islands, or other objects of military importance. All air shots were likewise forbidden.

In Japan's South Sea islands he obtained pictures of the kula with the native girls dancing only in their grass skirts, whereas the usual Hawaiian hula is accompanied by shirts as well as skirts. But again, lest he outrage his audience, he, of necessity, cut down his takes to a minimum.

He says of his work: "While most editors were concerned with war material, I gathered evidence of the cultural and historical expressions of the Japanese people. It is important to arrive at the causes of war, to see behind the lines, to gain the background of the news. The people of Japan are on the threshold of a great victory or of a grave defeat. A defeat would mean the loss of territory on the continent of Asia, and a general retreat along the frontiers of industrial competition. A victory will mean the expansion of goods made in Japan, and an extension of empire."

"Once the work of taking my pictures had begun, I carried out the original intention of showing the life of the Japanese in sound pictures, and due to the military and political crises, the result is a film that has more depth and importance than a mere news or travel picture."

KATHERINE WILSON OUTLINES MENACE TO AMERICAN LIBERTY

In a talk before the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club, which met Monday evening at Pine Inn, Miss Katherine Wilson, of Berkeley, told the large crowd present of the dangers facing our country today.

Among those present were Senator Edward Tickle, Mrs. Tom Fisher, John B. Jordan, Mrs. W. F. Gloeckner and Mrs. Baker, of Salinas. Mrs. Emil Neumann introduced the speaker.

"The principles of liberty and democracy are in jeopardy as never before," Miss Wilson declared. "They are being attacked and undermined by enemies within appropriating alien philosophies and imposing them on our system of government."

"The American people find themselves afraid of their own government; they are afraid of its attacks upon their liberties; afraid of its power; afraid of what it may be able to bring about within our whole political and economic system."

"Starting with an insidious creed of humanitarian objectives, the government has gone ahead with a program which may result in the establishment of a Socialistic dictatorship," Miss Wilson asserted.

In terms of gold dollars, this has resulted in the lowest farm prices in history, according to Miss Wilson, who said that wheat was the lowest in five years and the cotton market lost to other countries. The national farm income was $800,000,000 below last year for the nine months of 1938, while the railroad industry faces the greatest crisis in its history. More jobless millions are resulting in spite of the government's pump-priming and the rising national debt is staggering in its proportions.

Concealed taxation is taking a heavy toll to pay for the government's expenses and the national debt at the same time amounts to $310 per capita.

In 1937, taxes cut into the earnings of the average worker to the extent of $514, according to Miss Wilson's figures, despite the so-called "planned economy."

The $30 every Thursday plan was also assailed by the speaker as another "crack-pot idea." She said it would cost this state $2,184,000,000 per year for the idle and middle-aged.

The single-tax plan, or Henry George revamped, was declared by Miss Wilson to be confiscatory, placing the load entirely upon the land.

"Through inevitable demoralization of the character of the people, the ideas of the New Deal have secured a hold upon the millions through whom to perpetuate its iron grip on the government of the country," Miss Wilson said.

"This government," she added, "was one that had attacked even the integrity of the Supreme Court and brought the country to the verge of bankruptcy and of Social dictatorship."

The Republican Women's Club will hold a study group this evening at Pine Inn at 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Daisy Taylor will be in charge of the program.

Mr. Stewart, now...he stutters

Some folks you gotta learn to like, but not Mr. Stewart. He stutters terrible, but nobody notices much, because they like him.

The first time he came in my station, I tipped him off to our oil.

"Everybody has to do a lot o' stop-and-go drivin' these days," I started in, "an' that means they need a special oil."

"B-B-B-But..." says Mr. Stewart.

"When you stop and let your engine cool off," I hurried on, "your oil drains down off the movin' parts, leavin' 'em practically dry." "B-B-B-But..." says Mr. Stewart.

I interrupted him: "And when you START, you oughtn't to have to WAIT to have your oil get moving. It oughta FLOW—faster'n greased lightnin'."

"B-B-B-But..." says Mr. Stewart.

"Yessir," I cut in, "and only a quarter for a quart, too. Ain't that something!"

"B-B-B-But..." says Mr. Stewart, laughing at me, "I-I b-been using G-Golden Shell for s-six months."

So I laugh, too.

Sincerely,

Your Shell Dealer

NOW FOR THE BALLOTS

On September 27, the Sunset School District will vote upon bonding the district to the extent of $165,000 for a High School of its own. This should carry almost unanimously.

On September 29, the Monterey Union High School district will vote upon bonding the district to the extent of $525,000 for a new high school plant in Monterey. This should be defeated.

Regardless of all the side issues, near-issues and controversial matters that have become mixed into bitterness, the proposition is the simple one that Sunset District, by the requisite number of signatures, seeks withdrawal from the Union district, and desires to build and operate its own high school. It believes it has the population, the foundation of assessed valuation, and the ability to build and operate such a plant. It asks no help from outside the Sunset District, and if it should find itself mistaken in its figures, will carry on without weeping. It feels certain that its withdrawal will leave the present high school plant at Monterey sufficiently large for the lessened attendance, and make unnecessary its duplication or immediate enlargement. It should effect a saving to the rest of the Union district. If not, the set-up is wrong now.

For Carmel is not a wealthy and benevolent city, able and properly called upon to assume part of the tax burden for the education of Monterey's children. Quite the reverse. Carmel is a village of small homes and of circumscribed incomes. A large part of our population is artists, writers, musicians, students—people of small means, with cottages upon single lots, frequently hard-pressed to pay city and county taxes. There are no great industrial plants, with heavy pay-rolls, no fisheries or canneries to spread the burden over.

Carmel is not a mansion-city, but a cottage-town; not a wealthy Aunt, but a poor relation. More through ability and constructive effort than by the use of money, it has built up a fine elementary school of which it is proud. It believes it can do as well with a high school, and that it can pay its way. But it is not selfish or ungenerous because it refuses to pay 43 per cent of the costs of Monterey's high school pupils.

We are not aristocratic, "snobbish" or undemocratic. Quite the contrary. Sunset School has proved that. We do have many people deeply interested in education, and willing to devote time and careful thought to its problems. We believe that with their cooperation, we could have a high school here that would be famous.

BOUNCING TO TOWN

Give your liver a good shaking up! Just drive down Camino del Monte, one of the heavily-traveled routes to and from Carmel in the north end of town, and you'll want to shout: "Hi-yo, Silver! Hi-yo!"

In recent weeks the "washboard" and holes have become so bad that something should be done to fix up the Camino for the winter. A little rain, making the surface slippery as well as bumpy, and any number of accidents might result. That only one serious accident has happened since the Camino del Monte began getting into such bad shape is remarkable. It is only more remarkable that careless driving was a contributory factor in this accident.

Yes, drive along Camino del Monte, whenever you feel loggy! Then, you'll only need sleeping powders and liniment for your condition.

The other day Officer Les Overhulse had an unusual police job to attend to: Escort a female deer safely out of Carmel. At the same time, Officer Roy Fraties was bringing back a buck from the Sur.

THE HILLS OF THE SEA

Another ship has gone
 Over the little hills of the sea
 I watched it go
 Into the ocean's solitude
 Leaving behind a greater solitude
 Now . . . you are with me
 A silver ship with singing sails
 Loving the sea;
 And some bright day
 I am going sailing with you
 Over the multitudinous hills
 Of the sea
 To curious lands
 And distant places.

—C. F.

PATTERN

Her thoughts
 Were figures on a rug,
 Squirring to be free,
 Yet ever anchored
 In pitiful precision.

—C. F.

FORWARD

The old memories have gone,
 Slowly and gently,
 As precious old things always go;
 As blue incense steals from old temples
 At night, when the wind is still;
 As the returning of sunlight
 To the region of the stars
 At evening;
 As moonlight at dawning
 The old memories have gone.
 I would be a maker
 Of new memories.

EPITAPH

The tale of one who plucked a crimson flower,
 Rapt by its ravishing hue, and held it close,
 Till the spell of its heady scent gone all at once,
 He cast it from him, in pain, to face again
 The healing breath of meadows and the sea;
 Yet many times returned to the dank wood's shade
 And found the rich, dark bloom, and once more, in hatred,
 Cast it aside—

until there woke within
 A voice that sent him climbing in the hills
 Toward purple peace beyond, whose steadfast pinnacles
 Upraised their holy promise to the blue.

And so death found him in his stumbling climb,
 Spent, falling prone at times, to rise again . . .
 Now peace attend him! Surely, on this morn,
 His steps are firm, his face upraised, transformed
 With wonder of the glory now so near!

—CHARLES BALLARD.

LITTLE GIRL IN RED

She flames a brilliant autumn-leaf
 Upon this woodland scene;
 Her dress, a crimson splash against
 The russet and the green.

Her golden hair, a tight-bound sheaf,
 Her dancing feet gone mad;
 She symbolizes Autumn
 Because her heart is glad.

—JESSIE MAY HOOKER.

REGISTER NOW!

Citizens are reminded that now, today, is the time to register in order to qualify as a voter in the General Election, November 8th. Qualifications are that a voter must reside in the state for one year, in the county for 90 days and in the precinct for 40 days, in order to register.

September 29 is the last day to register before the General Election.

The register may be signed at either Staniford's drug store on Ocean avenue, or with F. O. Robbins, on Dolores street. Voters who failed to cast their ballot in the last general election must re-register. Voters who have moved must also re-register, but voters moving within 40 days of the election to another precinct in the same county are entitled to vote in the precinct where they were previously registered.

Absentee ballots may be applied for at the County Clerk's office at Salinas not more than 20 days and not less than five days before the election, and these must be returned not more than six days after the election, but not post-marked later than Election Day.

Shut-ins wishing to register may have a deputy call on application to the registrar ten days before the registration closes and the vote will also be collected by the deputy upon similar notice.

Keeness of the recent primary election warrants a check of registrations by those who are in doubt as to their voting status.

APOLOGIES TO MR. SCHULTE

We would like to call our readers' attention to an error in our page one story, last week, on the high school removal. About the middle of the story we stated that Carmel had no representative on the Union district board. Mr. B. H. Schulte of Carmel Valley was quick to point out that he represented Carmel on the board and at all times looked out for Carmel's interests, which we know to be the case. He was asked to serve by Carmel people and was acceptable to Monterey voters.

What we really meant to say was that if Carmel wanted a representative on the board whose ideas might not be identical with those of the rest of the district, we have not the voting power to put him in office.

COMING ELECTIONS

Carmel and Sunset school district voters have four important dates at the polls before the end of the month.

Next Monday they will vote on candidates for the Sanitary Board, of whom Allan Knight, an incumbent, and G. H. Burnett, banker and supporter of the Sanitary Board, are recommended by the Pine Cone for election. Their opponents are Frank Townsend, an incumbent, and Commander Joseph A. Murphy, U. S. N., retired.

Two bond issues will be voted on at separate polls on Tuesday, September 27, when the Sunset High School bonds for $165,000 and the $3,000 Library bonds will be placed before the voters. The polling places will be the Carmel Garage for the Sunset high school bonds and the Fire House for the Library bonds. Both are strongly recommended for support.

The $525,000 Monterey Union High School bond issue to pay for the proposed new "million dollar" high school, complete with auditorium to seat 1800 persons, will be settled at the polls on Thursday, September 29. Carmel voters will undoubtedly record a large majority vote against the bonds, the approval of which would further a 20-year entanglement in the affairs of the union district in which Carmel pays 30 per cent of the upkeep, receives 12 per cent of the benefit, or less—even less!

Dr. McIvor-Tyndall Inspires Audience

Dr. J. McIvor-Tyndall, English scientist and savant, brought to his Carmel audiences a charming personality and a message that America today, as the rising nation, stands at the threshold of a new opportunity, to spread peace upon the universe, if only her people can master themselves and through this mastery persuade the peoples of the world toward a newer and greater peace.

Speaking on a variety of allied subjects, dealing with man's powers, the powers of religion, the strength of belief, the telepathic powers of man, Dr. McIvor-Tyndall held his audiences entranced by his broad vision, his refusal to succumb to the petty disturbances of nature.

Dr. McIvor-Tyndall sees all nature and man as a harmonious entity, and maintains that there is no such thing as age and death. Instead, there is a continual development toward a goal. In fact, Dr. McIvor-Tyndall turns the usual moral and physical concepts inside-out with a rare deftness and agility of thought.

"We mistake ideas for ideals," he pointed out. "We think, in Europe, in terms of kings, while, in this country, we think in terms of the Constitution, and so lay down our right to be ruled by the present in favor of the rule of the past."

Following the series of open lectures, Dr. McIvor-Tyndall formed study groups for continued discourse on these interesting subjects.

Bud Brownell Out of National Golf

Bud Brownell, Carmel's outstanding young golfer, bowed out of the national amateur golf tournament at the Oakmont country club, Oakmont, Pa., this week after qualifying with a card of 78-76-154, despite the handicap of rain.

Brownell lost his first-round match to Jimmy Scott, New Albany, Indiana, 4 and 3.

His qualifying round was a couple of strokes more than Charley Yates, of Atlanta, one behind Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, and tied Ross "Sandy" Somerville, of London, Ont. He was two strokes better than Jess Sweetser, New York.

A week-end visitor in Carmel was Patrickson Greene of Los Angeles, who came up to visit his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Greene.

Deer Surprises Overhulse—Fraties Surprises Deer

The score was one-all between the deer population and Carmel's police force this week.

At almost the identical time that Officer Les Overhulse was surprised by a doe deer walking out of the bushes at Pine Inn and then heading off down through Sunset school yard and on through Mission street, Officer Roy Fraties was bagging a buck down in the Big Sur region.

The doe caused quite a stir on Ocean avenue, nearly knocking two girls off their feet as she tried to dodge traffic.

Fraties' buck had two and three spikes, dressed to about 100 pounds.

Overhulse's greatest fear was that the doe would try to go through a plate glass window.

The animal wisely avoided Dolores street and the nigrados who hang out at El Fumador.

Holiday Visitor Spends "Big Money"

Ted Jerstad, manager of the Frank Louda, Jr., fur store, took in a $500 check one day last week, but kept his furs in the storage cell.

Then he began a little sleuthing which turned up a series of interesting facts: That the check was worthless, that the same writer of checks had visited other places of business in Carmel, scribbling off-hand other large checks, that the same person had defrauded no one by his authorship of checks.

Carmel Realty took in a check as down payment for rent of a cottage. Ewig's received an advance for groceries by check. None, however, lost a cent, as no goods were delivered.

Police Judge George P. Ross decided no law had been violated. So everyone had their little moment of happiness, even if nothing came of it, and the check artist had a grand time signing checks.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

D., rector emeritus of All Saints' Church, Pasadena, will deliver the sermon. The full vested choir will sing at this service.

School Program In Discussion

Looking forward to a continuous program of improvement in the Sunset school course of study, faculty members met in the school library last Monday to discuss the initiation of this year's study project.

Recent trends in curriculum construction will be reviewed by the faculty group as the basis for the construction of a new course of study. This will be followed by an intensive investigation of the various problems of planning the school program.

Following the initial discussion of the problem, a coordinating committee of the faculty was appointed, including Helen Wood, Alice Graham, Arthur Hull, R. J. Gale and Bernita Ninneman.

Barbara Winslow Bows In Tennis

Barbara Winslow, Carmel's and Hollywood's youthful tennis sensation, this week bowed in the round of 16 in the U. S. national tennis championships.

After winning through two rounds, she finally suffered stage fright and went down easily before Kay Stammers, British star, by score of 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Winslow's ranking this year is expected to place her in the first ten. She was ranked 11th among U. S. women last year, but has played strongly during her campaign which led to Forest Hills.

SPEAKER FOR ALL SAINTS' CHURCH MEETING

All Saints Episcopal Church members will hear Mrs. Arthur Allen, of Wu-Chang, China, as speaker at a meeting next Wednesday at 2:30. The public is cordially invited to attend. Her work there has been of an educational and evangelistic nature.

The debutante will make her bow in the same dress her mother, the former Ethel Crocker, wore for her coming out party, and not only will she wear the same dress, but an exact replica of her mother's flowers as well as the same decorations which will be used in the same rooms as they were 20 years ago.

Among Carmel, Pebble Beach and Valley people invited are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Colden Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. B. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Haldorn and Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps.

Over 200 people attended the luncheon given at "Rushwold", at the home of Colonel and Mrs. R. R. Wallace on the Seventeen-Mile Drive, Wednesday. The party was for the Altar Guild of All Saint's Church. A beautiful day enhanced the lovely garden and the attractively arranged tables set about it. Add to the setting an excellent lunch and the presence of the Colonel and Mrs. Wallace and Miss Flora Stewart, who were hosts and it is easy to realize why the affair was such an unprecedented success.

From Shanghai comes the news that Doris and Gordon Campbell have found a home in the French Settlement and are busily acquiring a retinue of servants, because, as Gordy said, in a letter home, "A cook cooks, a scrubwoman scrubs, and a houseboy is a houseboy, and not one of them will do anything else." He also said he was enjoying his new work as U. S. marshal in China but was able to work only a few hours a day on account of the excessive heat.

Mrs. Constance Yates and her daughters, Barbara and Henrietta, of Hollywood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frisbie last week. Henrietta Yates sings over radio under the name of Julie Lynn.

A guest of Jerome Chance this week-end was John Easthagen, of Los Angeles. Jerry was home from Berkeley for the holiday.

Mrs. Burton Williams, accompanied by her daughter, Nancy, left on Saturday for San Francisco, where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. D. A. Leonard had as her guests last week Dr. and Mrs. Coe T. Swift and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Swift, of Madera. Mr. Swift is manager of the First National Bank in Madera.

TO THE RALPH CHANDLER HARRISON MEMORIAL LIBRARY, THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SIDEWALK AND RETAINING WALL IN AND ABOUT THE SAME, AND THE EQUIPPING AND FURNISHING OF THE SAID ADDITION.

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, State of California, on the 7th day of September, 1938, at a regular meeting of said Council, by the vote of more than two-thirds (2/3) of all its members, to-wit, by a unanimous vote of all the members thereof, duly and regularly adopted its Resolution No. 733 determining that the public interest and necessity demand the construction and completion of certain municipal improvements, to-wit: The construction and completion of an addition to the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library in said City, the construction of a sidewalk and retaining wall in and about the same, and the equipping and furnishing of the said addition;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. A special municipal election is hereby called and ordered to be held in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, on Tuesday, the 27th day of September, 1938, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said City the proposition of incurring a bonded debt by said municipality for the construction and completion of said municipal improvements hereinabove mentioned and hereinafter described.

Section 2. The objects and purposes for which said indebtedness is proposed to be incurred, the estimated cost of said proposed public improvements, the amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred therefor, and the maximum rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness are as follows:

(a) The objects and purposes for which said indebtedness is proposed to be incurred are the construction and completion of the following municipal improvements, to-wit: The construction and completion of an addition to the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library in said City, the construction and completion of a sidewalk and retaining wall in and about the same, and the equipping and furnishing of the said addition.

(b) The estimated cost of said public improvements is the sum of $8181.81, of which amount the estimated cost of said municipal improvements to said City is the sum of $3000.00 and of the balance, to-wit, the sum of $5181.81, $1500.00 will be paid from the building fund of the Board of Trustees of the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library and the balance, to-wit, the sum of $3681.81 is the estimated cost of said municipal improvements to the United States of America through the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works.

(c) The amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred for said public improvements is the sum of $3000.00.

(d) The maximum rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness is not to exceed 4 1/2% per annum, payable semi-annually.

Section 3. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea hereby finds and determines that said City has incurred no indebtedness for public improvements, save and except as follows:

(a) Municipal Improvement Bonds, issue of the year 1930, in the total sum of $15,000.00, interest at the rate of 5% per annum, payable semi-annually, balance unpaid but not yet due $7000.00

Section 11. The Council of said City hereby determines that the public interest, convenience and necessity of said City demand the acquisition of said public improvements above described; that said improvements are necessary and convenient to carry out the objects, purposes and powers of said municipality, and that said Council will and does hereby submit said proposition to the qualified voters of said City at said special municipal election.

Section 12. The bonds authorized to be issued pursuant to said election shall be negotiable in form and of the character known as serial and shall bear a maximum rate of interest not to exceed four and one-half (4 1/2%) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest payable in lawful money of the United States of America in the manner hereinafter set forth.

If I am Wrong, I Pay For This Ad!

The other day I looked up Harrison Godwin, our real estate sales manager.

"Harrison," I said, "A writer friend of mine wants to buy a lot in Carmel, but he wants the best location. Something with a marine view and situated among pines and oaks. Only he can't afford a big price. Can you help me?"

"That's easy," Harrison replied. "We have lots in Carmel Woods from $400 up to any price your friend wants to pay."

"Four hundred dollars! I know there are cheap lots in Carmel, but not surely in Carmel Woods, our most exclusive residential area. You're kidding!"

"All right," Harrison went on. "If you don't believe it, look over our listings. And remember all the lots have restrictions, perfect drainage and about everything you want for the construction of a home."

I did.

And I was frankly embarrassed.

As the advertising manager of Del Monte Properties Company I should have known about it.

"Why," I said to Harrison, "If the people in Carmel only realize what these lots cost they would snap them up. Why I'll make a bet..."

"You make a bet of what?" Harrison, being a sportsman, piped up.

"I'll make a bet that if I write an ad, mention prices and tell the people in Carmel about it, you'll sell at least three or four of the lots."

"Listen," he said, "You write whatever kind of an ad you want. If we don't sell one lot, you have to pay for the ad. How about it?"

"It's a go," I said. "I know the people in Carmel. They like bargains... on the best property. And this is the best. I'll bet you further that you'll get a dozen inquiries within six hours after this issue of The Pine Cone is on the streets."

"Okay."

I went up to my office, typed out these first few paragraphs and then added on the information sheet Harrison sent up.

Am I wrong?

HERE THEY ARE:

INTER-DEPARTMENT MEMORANDUM DEL MONTE PROPERTIES COMPANY

DATE September 12, 1938

FROM W. HARRISON GODWIN
TO HERBERT CERWIN
SUBJECT CARMEL WOODS

Lot 5, Block 306, at $600.00, located on Pescadero Canyon, with an unobstructed marine view, is one of the finest lots in Carmel Woods. There are beautiful pines and oaks. The lot has good natural drainage and has an excellent building site. This lot at such a low price, including sewer, gas, water, electricity, telephone, good roads and fine restrictions, could not be duplicated in any other part of Carmel. It should also be said that this locality is warm and sheltered.

Lot 21, Block 306, listed at $650.00, is equally attractive and all the same features can be found. I challenge anyone to find a better building site in Carmel.

Lot 3, in Block 300, with 80-foot frontage on the upper road, 137 feet deep and 123 feet on the lower road, is an exceptionally fine piece of property priced at $1,200. This lot has excellent unobstructed view of Carmel Bay. Property has sewer, water and electricity (no gas), good roads, and is located in the warmest and most sheltered part of Carmel Woods.

Lot 11, Block 152—40 feet x 100 feet—listed at $400, offers exceptionally fine building site at very low cost. This property is located on Dolores street, one block and half north of First, and is convenient to Carmel. The usual restrictions and utilities are included in this area.
